The General Accounting Office has been working on a survey of U.S. security assistance activity related to Greece, Turkey, Spain and Portugal, with emphasis currently on Greece. In general, the focus is on the composition and impact of these programs on the countries, both individually and collectively. Some of the specific issues being addressed include:

- Implementation and effectiveness of the U.S. assistance programs.
- Adequacy of financial and administrative controls on the assistance provided.
- Relationship of the programs to base and treaty agreements.
- Allocation of assistance relative to U.S. budget limitations.

We would like to meet with CIA representatives in order to discuss these matters.
